

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air partisan documentary, identified as "news", days before the election is an obvious case of the whatn happens when media consolidation is permitted beyond rason.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves at no coste and is, therefore, obligated under your organic law to serve the public interest. But when you permit large companies through consolidation to control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for profit and less of what we need for to maintain democracy.

What Sinclair plans to do by broadcasting a clearly partisan attack on John Kerry without charging an advertising fee to the sponsoring agency shows a blatant disregard of your own regulations. If you choose not to stop the broadcast, I would hope that their license of their various stations are revoked in due course.

Thank you.
